

SRUC researcher leads study into food waste to improving global food security

Almost a fifth of the food made available to consumers is lost through over-eating or waste, according to a study led by an SRUC researcher.