

Statement by SJ

A spokesman for the Department of Justice today (November 18) said that the Secretary for Justice has not yet recovered and required further treatment following the assault in London. She would provide an update as and when necessary after consulting medical advice. During this period, the Secretary will continue to handle her work as usual. She also expressed gratitude to all who send their kind wishes.