

The role for CO2 Capture and Storage in meeting global climate targets

Representatives from CO2GeoNet, the European Energy Research Alliance CCS Joint Programme, the Global CCS Institute, the UK Carbon Capture and Storage Association and the European Zero Emission Technology and Innovation Platform are working to raise awareness of the important role of CCS as a key emission reduction option.

Exploring the potential for geothermal energy

Geothermal energy in Cornwall

£1.5 million geospatial competition open to improve public services

The Geospatial Commission has partnered with Innovate UK to launch a new government competition where organisations can apply for a share of £1.5 million to fund projects which use data linked to location.

Swapping log-books for legislation

Dr Carol Cotterill from BGS will be swapping log-books for legislation when she visits Christine Jardine MP in Westminster (26 – 30 November) as part of the Royal Society pairing scheme supported by the Government Science & Engineering profession.

UK progress on reducing nitrate pollution

House of Commons Environmental Audit Committee today published its report on 'UK progress on reducing nitrate pollution'. This highlights that high levels of nitrate in groundwater cause oxygen depletion which is harmful to humans and biodiversity.