

Greece: EUR 24 million EIB backing for Greek National Centre for Scientific Research “Demokritos”

- Key support for largest public research centre in Greece tackling research brain drain
- Financing a EUR 48 million project for new research buildings and renovation of existing infrastructure
- Project to enable expansion of Lefkippos Technology Park and increase business partnership
- The EIB loan follows recent EIB support in the education sector in Greece, backing investments at nine Greek universities and financing the establishment of the Hellenic Foundation for Research and Innovation

The European Investment Bank today confirmed its support for the EUR 48 million expansion and modernisation of the National Centre for Scientific Research “Demokritos”, the largest public research centre in Greece. The project has also benefited from the support of InnovFin Advisory, one of the InnovFin tools, which provided Demokritos with advice to improve its access to finance.

The EIB will provide EUR 24 million for the project that includes construction of three new buildings and renovation of existing facilities to host renowned research institutes. The new investment will also expand capacity at the Lefkippos Technology Park, located within the Demokritos campus, to enable increased research collaboration among Greek and international business partners.

100 specialist senior research jobs are expected to be created once construction is complete and more than 38,000 m² of specialist research facilities will be constructed, renovated or improved.

The 25 year European Investment Bank loan, the first ever EIB support for the National Centre for Scientific Research "Demokritos", was formally signed today at the Demokritos campus by Christos Dimas, Deputy Minister of Development and Investments and Andrew McDowell, European Investment Bank Vice President. European Commission Vice President Margaritis Schinas and Demokritos researchers and staff attended the announcement.

"Greece is home to world class research, cutting edge innovation and collaboration with partners from around the world. However, new investment is essential to ensure that Greek researchers are not forced to take their skills and knowledge abroad. The impressive planned expansion of Demokritos marks a new era in Greek public research and will strengthen Greek contribution for natural sciences. I welcome the European Investment Bank's vote of confidence in Greek research and their support for the EUR 48 million development programme. This builds on the EIB's recent support to transform education and learning at universities across Greece and the Bank's key role enabling the establishment of the Hellenic Foundation for Research and Innovation." said Christos Staikouras, Minister of Finance of the Hellenic Republic and Governor of the European Investment Bank.

"The European Investment Bank recognises the importance of new investment across Europe to build on innovation strengths, enhance research collaboration and improve skills. The European Investment Bank is pleased to be able to provide EUR 24 million for this exciting and ambitious project to transform the National Centre for Scientific Research "Demokritos" and provide world-class opportunities for future generations of Greek researchers. The first ever EIB financing for Demokritos reflects the EIB's commitment to support innovation and education in Greece and demonstrates how EIB financing is benefiting this country." said Andrew McDowell, European Investment Bank Vice President responsible for lending operations in Greece.

"Demokritos represents the impressive strengths and diversity of Greek research that makes a key contribution to European innovation. Transformation of the Demokritos campus and Lefkippos Technology Park is a flagship project of national and European importance. This demonstrates the impact of European engagement to ensure a better future for Greece." said Margaritis Schinas, Vice President of the European Commission.

All of us at the National Centre for Scientific Research "Demokritos" are humbled by the recognition and trust the Centre receives by the European Union and the Hellenic Republic. We are grateful to EIB for their valuable support. We are confident and fully committed to transform Demokritos' campus into a vibrant ecosystem for Research and Innovation, accomplishing scientific advancements of world-class impact and innovation for the benefit of the Greek Society, said the current and former Presidents of the Centre Drs Vassilis Kilikoglou and Georgios Nounesis.

Demokritos is the largest multidisciplinary research centre in Greece, with about 630 researchers working in projects funded mainly by grants from State funds, the European Union and the private sector. The Centre consists of five independent Institutes focusing on different scientific fields and is supervised by the General Secretariat of Research and Technology, which is in the Ministry of Development and Investments

Press release – Summit with Western Balkans speakers on Tuesday

Parliamentary Speakers from Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia and Serbia will gather on Tuesday to discuss European prospects for the Western Balkans. They will be joined by the president of Croatia's Parliament, the country currently holding the rotating Presidency of the Council of the EU.

The speakers will meet European Parliament President David Sassoli, the chairs of EP political groups as well as the Foreign Affairs Committee's Working Group on the Western Balkans.

President David Sassoli said: "I am looking forward to welcoming the speakers from the Western Balkans to the European Parliament. This house has always been firmly committed to the European perspective of the Western Balkans. It is well known that we were very disappointed by the failure of the European Council to start negotiations with Albania and North Macedonia last October. It is now time to move on together and keep pushing for progress. Parliaments are essential in this regard. I convened this Summit for us to develop a strategy for the role that Parliaments can play in driving the EU reform agenda and in delivering concrete measures to meet the European aspirations of the people of the Western Balkans. I am convinced that there is no better time and place to do so.”

Parliamentary cooperation, the future of Europe and the enlargement process, which has stalled following disagreement in Council on opening accession talks with Albania and North Macedonia, are on the summit’s agenda. In its resolution adopted last October, Parliament expressed disappointment that Albania and North Macedonia were not able to start accession talks, stressing that the enlargement process has played a decisive role in stabilising the Western Balkans.

The meeting with the members of the Committee on Foreign Affairs Working Group on the Western Balkans will be open to the public: you can watch it live.

The summit is organised under the patronage of President Sassoli, in cooperation with the Foreign Affairs Committee and the delegations for relations with the Western Balkans.

When: Tuesday, 28 January 18.00

Where: Brussels, SPAAK Building, room 3C50
