

Star students say goodbye to a popular Bill

A large group of distinguished graduates – including world champions, Olympians and company directors – have paid tribute to a popular lecturer who has retired after 36 years at SRUC.

Women in agriculture make their voices heard

Women working in Scottish agriculture will be “making their voices heard” at this year’s autumn conference.

Amazing Aimee named top British student

An SRUC graduate has described the “amazing feeling” of being named Agricultural Student of the Year at the 2018 British Farming Awards.

Plan now for the unexpected

With a “no deal” Brexit looking more likely than ever, farmers are being urged to ‘plan for the unexpected’ with the new edition of The Farm Management Handbook.

'Crash course' in animal breeding

World-leading livestock scientists will next month deliver a 'crash course' in animal breeding.