

Moor value

Researchers from SRUC have contributed to a new publication looking at the future of Scotland's moorlands.

Beefing up efficiency

There is 'considerable opportunity' to improve the efficiency of the beef sector in Scotland, according to new research published by Scotland's Rural College.

Return to nature

Rewilding will come under the spotlight at an event exploring the costs and benefits of restoring land to its natural state.

Badger sett and match

Countryside Management students at Scotland's Rural College are learning how to survey badgers as part of a new course being delivered at its West Lothian campus.

Cream of the crop

Ten students and trainees representing SRUC were celebrating last night after picking up a selection of awards at Lantra Scotland's ALBAS event.