

From drones to climate change

From the use of drones in agriculture to the impact of what we eat on climate change, Scotland's Rural College is tackling the latest issues at the 2019 Royal Highland Show (20-23 June).

Big potential of smallholdings

TV programmes such as "River Cottage" and "Jimmy's Farm" have helped highlight the potential of small-scale agricultural enterprises – leading to a demand for smallholdings, according to a new report,

Sowing seeds for the future

For budding horticulturist Colin Palmer, a trip to the Chelsea Flower Show has helped sow the seeds for future plans.

Growing Scotland's rural economy

A new strategic approach to meet the skills needs of rural Scotland has been launched with the support of Scotland's Rural College.

Innovation coming home to roost

The UK's largest facility to improve avian nutrition, health and welfare has opened today near Edinburgh.