

Tech execs to face sanctions for failing to curb knife content

Senior executives who fail to stop dangerous and illegal knives being advertised on their platforms will be held liable under new government proposal.