

Tech experts to shape government digital vision to drive innovation and boost public services

Millions are set to benefit from reduced waiting times and improved public services, as technology experts, advocates, and academics come together to shape the government's new 'digital centre'.