

The genomes are out of the bottle

World-leading livestock scientists from Scotland's Rural College are set to give vets the lowdown on genomics to give them the knowledge that farmers need to optimise their breeding decisions.