

Tougher protections for journalism added to online safety laws

People's access to trusted, high-quality journalism online is to get a further boost as the government adds stronger press protections to its pioneering Online Safety Bill.