

UK backs clean power innovation to speed up global energy transition

UK spearheads global efforts to combat climate change with a funding package to help developing countries transition to clean energy.