

UK government urges big business to tackle global hunger

On World Food Day (Monday 16 October) UK announces a partnership to encourage major food companies to improve the impact of their products on consumers' health.