

UK joins international research centre to tackle climate change and explore space

Researchers will benefit from new international partnerships with 15 countries as part of the Atlantic International Research Centre, thanks to a new agreement signed today.