

UK joins leading nations to form new telecoms coalition and invests £70 million in new future telecoms technologies

The UK has joined a global coalition to enhance communication network resilience and is investing £70 million in advancing domestic next-gen telecom technology through the UKRI Technology Missions Fund.