

UK, US and Canada to collaborate on cybersecurity and AI research

Military science and technology organisations agree to partner on critical research areas in support of defence and security.