

Nottingham drug dealer jailed for longer

A Nottingham man has had his jail sentence increased following an intervention by the then Solicitor General, Rt Hon Michael Ellis QC MP.

Francis Wellington, 37, was found guilty of conspiracy to supply drugs, possession of Class B drugs, blackmail and sending abusive text messages, and of inflicting grievous bodily harm. The offences took place between 2016 and 2020.

Wellington has 11 previous convictions, including several for supplying drugs.

In 2016 Wellington was arrested and charged with being part of a gang supplying cocaine from London to the Nottingham area. Wellington pleaded guilty to the charge in November 2020.

He also pleaded guilty in May 2017 to sending abusive and controlling texts to his partner.

In February 2020, he was arrested for assaulting a houseguest, breaking his jaw, smashing a mirror over his head and dragging him through the broken glass. He was charged in March 2020 and pleaded guilty in September 2020.

Finally, on 12 April 2020, while Wellington was incarcerated at HMP Nottingham, he sought to extract £5,000 from an old schoolfriend. He sent associates to the victim's house and that of his mother. They claimed that the victim owed money to Wellington and threatened violence unless he paid the supposed debt. Wellington was charged in July 2020 and pleaded guilty in September 2020.

On 16 December 2020, Wellington was sentenced to 5 years' imprisonment at Nottingham Crown Court.

Following the court's decision, the Solicitor General referred the sentence to the Court of Appeal under the Unduly Lenient Sentence (ULS) scheme. On 5 March 2021, the Court found the sentence to be unduly lenient and increased it to 9 years' imprisonment.

After the hearing at the Court of Appeal the now Attorney General, Rt Hon Michael Ellis QC MP, said:

The trade in drugs is destroying lives across the UK, driven by criminals like Wellington. He was also willing to use and threaten violence against others. I welcome the decision by the Court of Appeal to increase his sentence.

Business Secretary co-chairs UK Steel Council meeting: 5 March 2021

News story

Business Secretary Kwasi Kwarteng has co-chaired a meeting of the UK Steel Council.

As part of the UK government's regular and ongoing engagement with the steel industry, Business Secretary Kwasi Kwarteng today re-established and co-chaired the latest UK Steel Council meeting, with representatives from the 6 major steel companies in the UK, as well as UK Steel, the sector's trade association, trade unions and the Devolved Administrations in attendance.

The Business Secretary opened the call reiterating the UK government's commitment to levelling up the country and protecting jobs as we build back better from the pandemic. He noted the newly constituted Steel Council offers the forum for government, industry and trade unions to work in partnership on the shared objective of creating an achievable, long-term plan to support the sector's transition to a competitive, sustainable and low carbon future.

There was acknowledgement of the extraordinary pressures that steel businesses are facing as a result of the global coronavirus pandemic and reaffirmed the government's commitment to support the sector and to help the industry to decarbonise. Kwasi Kwarteng noted, for example, the government has provided more than £500 million in relief to help make electricity costs more competitive and has established a £250 million Clean Steel Fund to support the decarbonisation of the steel sector.

The UK government remains committed to working with the steel industry in partnership to achieving Net Zero carbon emissions, but Mr Kwarteng recognised that it is a huge challenge.

The Business Secretary set out that the forthcoming Industrial Decarbonisation Strategy will not only demonstrate how the manufacturing sector can cut emissions, but also how it can become a thriving industry over the coming decades as it transitions to a low carbon future.

A joint UK Steel and BEIS Procurement Taskforce will also meet for the first time shortly and will be chaired by Lord Grimstone. It will aim to explore any difficulties reported by the sector in competing for and securing major public contractors and what the government can do to address them.

The Steel Council intends to meet regularly over the coming year and today's attendees included:

- Business Secretary Kwasi Kwarteng
- Lord Grimstone, Minister for Investment
- Anne-Marie Trevelyan, Energy Minister
- Simon Hart, Secretary of State for Wales
- Luis Sanz, Chair of UK Steel and CEO, Celsa
- Gareth Stace, Director General, UK Steel
- Tor Farquhar, HR Director, Tata Steel Europe
- Antonius Deelan, CEO, British Steel
- Jon Ferriman, CEO, Liberty Steel,
- David Bond, Managing Director, Sheffield Forgemasters
- David Scaife, Director, Outokumpu
- Roy Rickhuss, Community Union
- Harish Patel, Unite Union
- Ross Murdoch, GMB Union
- Ken Skates, Minister for Economy, Transport and North Wales, Welsh Government
- Jamie Hepburn, Minister for Business, Fair Work and Skills, Scottish Government
- Chris McDonald, CEO, Materials Processing Institute
