Corbyn demands neither hard nor soft but a Fantasy Brexit, says UKIP Leader Gerard Batten

Jeremy Corbyn’s speech this morning was supposed to end the Labour tactic of creative confusion over it’s Brexit policy, but does no such thing.

UKIP Leader Gerard Batten said: “What Labour are demanding is nothing more than a fantasy ‘Unicorn’ Brexit, where everybody thinks they will receive everything on their wish list, while no serious thought is given to what is actually achievable without revoking the European Communities Act.

The education system does not represent good value for money

With the average student debt running at £50,000, rising to an average of £57,000 for the poorest, there has been growing concern regarding the cost of going to university and whether it represents value for money.

Today the Prime Minister admitted that trebling university fees failed to create a competitive market, and subsequently, an independent review into further and higher education was announced.
