

US President Trump rejects globalism in speech to UN General Assembly's annual debate

Taking the podium of the United Nations General Assembly, the world Organization that embodies greater global cooperation, United States President Donald Trump told scores of Heads of State and Government on Tuesday that his country rejects the ideology of globalism.

"America is governed by Americans," he said on the opening day of the Assembly's annual General Debate. "We reject the ideology of globalism, and we embrace the doctrine of patriotism. Around the world, responsible nations must defend against threats to sovereignty not just from global governance, but also from other, new forms of coercion and domination."

At the same time, he reiterated the US commitment to making the UN more effective and accountable. "I have said many times that the United Nations has unlimited potential," he declared.

More to follow