

Voucher scheme boost to help thousands more families resolve disputes away from court

Thousands more families are set to benefit from a government mediation scheme that has been helping separating parents resolve disputes away from court.