

Vulnerable people using safety alarms to be better protected as government reaches landmark agreements with telecoms industry

New measures to bolster protections for elderly and disabled people relying on lifesaving alarms to call for help.