

We're still seeing no action from Tory Government on social care crisis – Barbara Keeley

Keeley MP,

Labour's Shadow Cabinet Minister for Social Care, commenting on new figures for delayed transfers of care due to a lack of social care, said:

“It is worrying that the number of days that patients are stuck in hospital due to a lack of social care has increased by more than a quarter since last year.”

“Delayed days caused by patients waiting for care packages at home and in care homes and nursing homes have also increased this month, yet we still see no action from the Tory Government to deal with the social care crisis.

“A Labour Government would provide the urgent additional funding needed to deal with the crisis in social care.”
