

Women and girls across Africa, Asia and the Middle East to benefit from a new UK higher education programme

Deputy Foreign Secretary, Andrew Mitchell, announces an ambitious £45 million higher education programme at the Education World Forum to deliver a better future for young people, particularly women and girls.