

World first agreement to tackle online fraud

The UK government and some of the world's biggest tech companies have agreed a series of pledges to protect the public from online fraud.