

Young Greens call on government to defend universities against 'campaign of intimidation'

Green Party

26 October 2017

Responding to today's Daily Mail splash 'Our remainder universities' [1], Young Greens co-chair Sam Murray said:

"As an academic I find this witch hunt by the right wing media a frightening exercise in enforcing a pro-Brexit doctrine. Britain's universities are world-class, and our academics have a right to teach without fear of smears and harassment from the press. It's crucial that the government stand up for them and condemn this campaign of intimidation."

The headline comes after pro-Brexit MP Chris Heaton-Harris sent a letter to vice-chancellors requesting details of their teaching on the EU [2].

Notes:

1. <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-5018251/Remainer-universities-Anti-Brexit-bias-laid-bare.html>
2. <https://www.theguardian.com/education/2017/oct/25/chris-heaton-harris-mp-who-asked-for-list-of-tutors-lecturing-on-brexit-was-doing-research>

Tweet

Back to main news page

Let's block ads! \(Why?\)